IN THE UNITED STATES PATENT AND TRADEMARK OFFICE
BEFORE THE TRADEMARK TRIAL AND APPEAL BOARD

Examining Attorney: Amos T. Matthews

Law Office 108

Applicant : Berthold Types Limited

Serial No.: 75/866,912

Filed: December 9, 1999

Mark: WHITTINGHAM

01-05-2004

U.S. Patent & TMOfr/TM Mail Rcpt Dt. #22

Attorney's Reference: 31349-152729

ATTN: BOX TTAB NO FEE

Sir/Madam:

APPLICANT'S REPLY BRIEF

On page 7 of the Examining Attorney's Appeal Brief, the Examining Attorney indicates that Applicant's position that because "ham" is a common suffix for geographic locations, consumers are likely to believe that the designation WHITTINGHAM is a geographic location rather than a surname, "may have some merit." The Examining Attorney then goes on to state that "ham" is also a suffix for surnames, and in support of that contention, he lists 12 surnames that end in the suffix "ham." It is worth noting that of those 12 surnames listed, 9 also have substantial geographic significance (see listings from Getty Thesaurus of Geographic Names On Line attached as Exhibit "A").

The standard to be applied here is whether the average consumer in the U.S. would view the term WHITTINGHAM as being "primarily merely a surname." Not "maybe" or "possibly" a surname, but "primarily merely" a surname.

It is the applicant's position that the combination of (a) the fact that WHITTINGHAM is a rather rare surname, and (b) that designations ending in the suffix "ham" are often geographic designations, leads to there being at least an equal chance that consumers would perceive WHITTINGHAM as being a geographic designation and not a surname. The "purchasing public" would therefore not necessarily perceive the mark as "primarily merely a surname." This is certainly bolstered by the fact that the Examining Attorney did not in the first instance issue a refusal of registration under Section 2(e)(4) of the Trademark Act¹, and, in fact, had at one point approved this application for publication. Certainly, if the overwhelming primary significance of the mark is that of being a surname, the Examining Attorney would have perceived that upon initial examination, and not as an afterthought after approving the mark for publication.

Applicant submits that if the Examining Attorney, who is specifically looking for such things during the examination process, did not initially perceive the mark to have any surname significance, then consumers are not likely to perceive the mark to be "primarily merely a surname."

Based upon the foregoing, it is respectfully requested that the refusal of registration be reversed, and that this mark be forwarded for publication in the Official Gazette.
